

There are two exams; one for grade E and one for higher grades. The first, but not the second is mandatory. The exam for E-grade can be done by answering control questions after each lecture. If you have missed some lectures you can complement by doing an exam at the end of the course. This exam is done in writing with opportunity to make oral supplementation afterwards. You will get one or two questions for each lecture you have missed. You should prepare yourself by reading the lecture notes. The exam takes up to 30 minutes.

An example of a problem is

GIVE AN EXAMPLE OF AN AD HOC - HYPOTHESIS

The exam for higher grades is done orally. Answer questions in groups of up to four people. You will be graded individually. The requirements are:
C-level: you should be able to describe in detail the content of the lectures and seminars. You prepare best by reading the lecture notes, materials from the seminars and the course book.

A-level: you should be able to apply everything you've learned in the course to new unexpected issues. You prepare best by reading lecture notes, materials from seminars and the course book.

At the start of the exam you can choose if you want to be asked questions on A-level or C-level.